CRIME & CASUALTY.

Terrific Boiler Explosion—Five Men Instantly Killed and Four Badly Wounded.

One Steamboat Sunk and Another Disabled By Collisions in New York Bay.

Heavy Diamond Robbery at Denver—Serious Accident on the Northwestern Ry.

FRIGHTFUL BOILER EXPLOSION. Allentown, Pa., June 21.—An explosion occurred at 5:30 this morning at the ore mines on the land of Snyder & Stephens, two miles from Emaus, Pa. The boiler burst with terrific force, killing five men outright and wounding four others. The killed are A. Ettinger, of Emaus, head blown off; Smith, a German workman; Figley, contractor; Snyder, land owner, and Derr B. Keck, engineer, was badly scalded and had his leg broken. A brother of Derr and two others, names unknown, were also badly wounded. Two years ago a similar accident at the same place killed four men and wounded several others.

SECOND DISPATCH. Reading, Pa., June 21.—When the explosion took place to-day at East Texas, the men were just assembling to commence work. The boiler was torn into fragments, and pieces of iron and splinters of the boiler house were blown in every direction. A. Ettinger, of Emaus, had his head completely blown from his body, which was picked up in a gulch some thirty yards from where the body was found. The neck appeared as if the head had been pulled from his body. He was an elderly man, and leaves a family of grown children.

James Smith, a German, was found a short distance from Ettinger. He was terribly mangled, and dead. His face was black with fire, sulphur and dirt.

Frank Figley, contractor and operator, was instantly killed. His body was frightfully torn and disfigured.

Charles Moyer, one of the head owners, was also instantly killed. He leased the track on a royalty, and was near the boiler when the explosion took place. His breast, head and arms were frightfully torn. Moyer and Figley also leave families.

Amos Derr was picked up about fifty feet from the boiler house. He was insensible, mangled and bleeding, and a few minutes after one of the men had reached him he died. He was unmarried.

The bodies were gathered up and placed side by side. Their appearance was shocking in the extreme. Near by were laid wounded men groaning and dying. Their agony was intense. Keck, the engineer, could not speak to give any account of the condition of the water in the boiler.

Two men, named Yost and Herrick were picked up near the engineer. They were scalded and mangled by splinters. One of them begged to be killed, to be relieved of his terrible pain.

The surroundings presented a shocking appearance and strong men faint- ed at the horrible sight of the dead and dying. Four of the wounded can- not live. The wives and children of victims soon gathered and their cries were heart rending.

THIRD DISPATCH.

Benj. Keck, the engineer, has died, making the sixth victim. He left a statement in which he avers that he notified Contractor Figley three months ago that the boiler was un- safe.

STEAMBOAT COLLISIONS.

New York, June 21.—The steam- ship Italy, hence for Liverpool, to- day ran into the German ship Bar- barossa, arrived from Havre the 19th and at anchor in the bay, sink- ing. While the Italy was backing the wreck, she and the steamship Italia, for London, came in collision. The Italia was obliged to return to the Italy proceeded to sea. It is reported the Canada has four feet of water in her.

LATER.

The officers of the Canada state that she is not leaking, yet the pumps are hard at work, and the cargo is being discharged rapidly on lighters. There is the best authority for the state- ment that the vessel has over two feet of water in her hold, but it has not touched the cargo, and the damage is said to be trifling. It is said the ves- sels were racing and that the tug came in the course of the Italy to avoid which she tried to cross the bow of the Canada. In this move- ment she crashed into the star- board bow of the Canada, staying in twelve feet of it above the water- line, while her propeller struck the Canada's plates, under the water- line and broke them badly, causing leak- age; after clearing the Canada, the Italy ran straight into the ship Bar- barossa, crushing in her side. The damage to the Canada is thought to be about $5,000, and to the Italy $1,000, and to the ship Barbarossa about $15,000. It is thought the Canada will be ready to sail by Wednesday. She will have to go on dry dock.

THE HULL MURDER MYSTERY.

New York, June 21.—Bristow Fran- cis, husband of the colored cook of the late Mrs. Hull, was brought to the police headquarters to-day, where a consultation was held with the su- perintendent. He was then sent to the house of detention as a witness. He will be called before the coroner's jury on Monday.

A LIFE SENTENCE.

Bernstein and Pearlston, alleged confederates of Levy, are now serving life sentences.

DIAMOND ROBBERY.

Denver, Col., June 21.—A dispatch says: The jewelry store of Hatch, Davidson & Co. was robbed of $3,000 worth of diamonds this morning. A man in a buggy called the clerk to the sidewalk to give an order, while his accomplice slipped in the back door.

RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., June 21.—The east bound freight train for Chicago, on the Northwestern road, was ditched this morning at London, twenty miles east of this city. Four tramps, concealed in a car loaded with corn, were killed, and the conductor, Mr. Moore, received injuries which must prove fatal.

GREAT BRITAIN.

PEDESTRIANISM.

London, June 21.—10 a. m.—Weston, 491 miles; Brown, 429.

New York, June 21.—The score at noon, according to a London dispatch, was, Weston, 498 miles; Brown, 426.

London, June 21.—3:30 p. m.—The score stood: Weston, 512 miles; Brown, 442 miles. Weston was going as fast if not faster than the time of any of his contestants in the present match, and he is almost certain to beat Brown's record of 542 miles. Brown is walking slowly, and merely perse- vering in order to obtain a share of the gate money. His right knee is still very bad.

Weston is going wonderfully. When the band plays he trots at the rate of an hour, Brown is merely limping along. The Atten- dance is very scanty. Rowell is among the spectators. His foot is im- proving.

THE LATEST.

6:30 p. m.—At 6 o'clock this even- ing Weston's score was 526½ miles. He is still going fast. He ran the last mile in seven minutes and thirty-seven seconds. Brown had completed 450 miles at seventeen minutes past 5. At 6 o'clock he was running.

AQUATIC.

London, June 21.—Recent arrange- ments for the sculling match between Plaisted and Nicholson, were altered. The match grew out of differences of opinion between two of Hanlon's friends respecting the merits of the two men. This gave rise to peculiar inferences on the part of the public, hence the match will be rowed in private, and no report of it will be made public.

THE PRINCE IMPERIAL.

THE EMPRESS SWOONS.

London, June 21.—Ex-Empress Eu- genie swooned when she heard of her son's death, and remained insensible a long time. She rallied somewhat in the afternoon, but was unable to see anybody. Many distinguished visi- tors called, and many telegrams of con- dolence were received from all parts of the world.

THE NEWS IN FRANCE.

Paris, June 21.—The news of the death of the Prince Imperial, was not published in the morning papers, and it was late in the afternoon before it was generally known. It made a great sensation, and among the Bonapartists it created dismay. Prince Victor, who by political testament succeeds to the title, is now a student at Lyons, Charlemagne. Even if he is willing to agree to his father's exclusion, it is questionable whether the deceased had the power, on Bonapartist principles, to make such a change. There will also be a difficulty on the part of leading Bonapartists to confer with and guide the actions of the young prince without the consent of his parents. Nevertheless it is evi- dent that the party leaders intend to maintain their party organization.

Last night at a setting of the Bon- apartist senators and representatives a resolution was adopted declaring that though the prince imperial is dead his cause survives and that the succession of the Napoleons has not lapsed, and that the empire will live. An address of condolence with the ex- empress, Eugenie, was adopted, ex- pressing the deepest sympathy.

THE NEWS IN GERMANY.

Berlin, June 21.—The news of the death of the prince imperial has caused a profound sensation here. All of the newspapers express deep sympathy.

The conservative organ, the Post, which fairly represents the general feeling says:

"We never had any sympathy for the dynasty, which worked our father land such grievous wrong, but in view of the frightful fate which has over- taken his descendants antipathies must be left out of account. Human feeling will have its way."

CONVULSION OF THE EMPRESS.

London, June 21.—The ex-empress is deeply and depressed. Her pri- vate secretary telegraphed the duchess of Sutherland this morning that she still remained in a semi-conscious con- dition, and that it was imperatively necessary to do something to arouse her. The duchess accordingly started for Chislehurst.

WASHINGTON.

CONGRESSIONAL.

SENATE.

Washington, June 21.—The bill regulat- ing intercourse with Chinese subjects was taken up and Mr. Slater read a long speech. The report of the conference committee on the judicial expenses bill was taken up and adopted by a party vote.

Resolutions authorizing the committee on privileges and elections to investigate the Ingalls case were adopted.

HOUSE.

Mr. Cobb made a personal explanation regarding the statement of the Indianapolis Journal concerning the Massachusetts regiment, and brought on a discussion lasting two hours.

The army appropriation bill was pre- sented by the committee on enrolled bills and signed by the speaker, and the house proceeded the consideration of the politi- cal assessment bill.

The republicans then filibustered against any disposition of the bill.

Important Railroad Sale.

Detroit, June 21.—The division of the Chicago & Lake Huron R. R., ex- tending from Port Huron to Flint, and formerly known as the Port Huron and Lake Michigan R. R., was sold at auction, at noon to-day, for $300,000 to a committee said to represent the eastern bondholders of the Grand Trunk Company. The purchasing committee assumes the re- ceiver's indebtedness, which, it is said, foots up over $500,000. The commit- tee say the road will be organized in the interest of the Grand Trunk with- out unnecessary delay.

Meteorological.

Washington, June 21.—Indications: For Tennessee and Ohio valley, southerly winds, partly cloudy weather, occasional rains, stationary followed by lower tem- perature and possibly by westerly winds, stationary or higher pressure. For lower lake regions, falling barometer, warmer, southwest winds, cloudy weather, local rains or storms, possibly followed by cooler westerly winds, rising barometer and clearer weather.

A fly young man from the country was arrested by Guthermuth this afternoon, for fast driving and general boisterous conduct on the streets. His team, a fine horse and buggy, were taken care of, and at present he is "heaving up Joner" in the city-booze. A few minutes after the above arrest, Ben took in another citizen, for trying to monopolize the sidewalk. Ben's a rouser.

Success in the maladies treated by him is simply the natural result of a devotion of many years to the study and treat- ment of the maladies of certain organs, the possession of every scientific appli- ance for the purpose, and an almost un- paralleled experience. He never holds out false hopes, but tells the patient what he is able to do for him and no more. In his examination he brings to his aid many instruments, new and never used in ordinary practice. Some of these are his own invention, and others have been brought by him to this country from Europe.

quiet, gazing downward, as she went up with her empty basket through the deserted country roads. Bebe was all day long in the city, as other girls were, but with her it had always been different. She had always been with her up to the day of his death and after his death she had sat in the same place, surrounded by the people she knew, and her life had been answered by her. The cobbler's strap, or from the maker's hammer. There was one girl only who ever tried to do her any harm—a good looking, stout wench, who stood at the corner of the Montagne de la Cour with a stall of fruit the summer time, and in winter drove a milk cart over the snow. This girl would get at her sometimes, and talk of the students, and tell her how good it was to get out of town on holiday, and go to any one of the villages where there was Kermesse and dance, and drink the little blue wine, and have trinkets bought for one, and come home in the moonlight in a car-a-banc with horns sounding, and lads singing, and the ribbons flying from the old horse's ears. "She is such a close sly thing!" thought the fruit-girl, sulkily. To her, innocence must always seem only a superior kind of chicanery. "We dance almost every evening," she children and I." Bebe had answered when urged fifty times by this girl to go to fairs and balls at the country-shops. "That does just as well, and I have seen Kermesse once at a time—it was beautiful. I went with Mère Dax, and it cost a great deal I know, though she did not let me pay." "You little fool!" the fruit girl would say, and grin, and eat a pear. But the good honest old women who were about in the Grande Place, hearing of this, had always taken the fruit-girl to task, when they got her by herself. "Leave the child alone, you mischievous one," said they. "Be content with being base yourself. Look at you, Lisette—she is not one like you make eyes at the law-students, and master the painter lads for a day's outing. Let her be, or we will tell your mother how you leave the fruit for the gutter children to pick and thieves, while you are stealing up the stairs to that young French fellow's chamber. Oh, oh! a fine beating you will get when she knows!" Lisette's mother was a fierce and strong old Brabantoise, who exacted every reckoning with her daughter for every single plum and peach that she sent out of her dark sweet-smelling fruit-shop to be sunned in the streets, and under the students' love-letters. So the girl took heed and left Bebe alone. "What should I want her to come and do us for?" she reasoned with herself. "She is twice as pretty as I am. She might have a husband, and I have none." So she left her. It was a long time before she saw her again. In all the street-corners, but in the one that is eaten in a day, one saw her. And its like does not grow in the fields. You will have your mouth full of sugar an hour—and then, eh! you will go famished all the year." "I do not understand," said Bebe, as she thought far away, and scarcely hearing the words spoken to her. "Oh, the pretty little fool! you understand well enough," said Lisette, as she rubbed up a melon. "Does he give you fine things? You ought let me see." "No one gives me anything." "Chut! you want me to believe that. My Jules is only a lad, and his father is a silk-mercier, and only gives me a hundred fangs a month, but he buys me all I want—somehow or do you think I would take the trouble to set my cap straight when he goes by? He gave me these earrings, look. I wish you would let me see what you get." But Bebe had gone away—unheeded—dreaming of Juliet and of Jean d'Arc, of whom he had told her tales. He made sketches of her sometimes, and seldom pleased himself. It was not so easy as he had imagined that it would prove to portray a little flower-like face, with the large eyes and the child's open brow. He who had painted Phryne so long and so faithfully had got a taint on his brush—he could not paint this fair, bright, rosy dawn—who did always painted the glare of midnight on rough or rags. Yet he tried it that he could transfer to canvas the light that was on Bebe's face, and would get what Shaffer had missed. But a time it eluded him. "You shall paint a gold and glistening brocade, or a fan of peacock's feathers, to perfection, and yet perhaps, the dewy whiteness of the humble-field-daisy shall baffle and escape him." He felt, too, that he must catch an expression flying as he would do a flash of a swallow's wing across the blue sky; he knew that Bebe, according to studied attitudes in an atelier, would be no longer the ideal that he wanted. More than once he came and filled his little hut garden, among the sweet peas and lavender and the golden disks of the sunflowers; and, more than once he was missed from her place in front of the Broodhuis. CURIOUS COGNOMENS

Which Can be Found in the New City Directory.

A Few Interesting Items Gleaned from Its Pages.

America is thoroughly democratic in all its institutions; there are no bloated aristocrats to be found in its ranks. As an example, by referring to our new city directory, it is found that our presidents, who were once hailed as "his excellency," and were fêted wherever they chanced to go, have since their retirement from public life, settled down to quiet life and common labor, and no one passing them on the streets would imagine that they once reigned as chief executive officers of our mighty nation. For example: John Adams is now running a saloon and billiard hall on Calhoun street, while Andrew Jackson is the successful manipulator of the calceining brush; Andrew Johnson, who came so near being impeached, and who has been reported dead by almost every newspaper in the land, is quietly running an engine on one of our railroads; J. Madison has learned the machinist's trade, and is running a lathe in the Pittsburgh railroad shop, while J. J. Monroe, the author of the famous "Monroe doctrine," is a coal heaver or fireman on a locomotive engine. John Tyler no longer yields the imperial scepter, but devotes his time to penmanship and is now one of the finest scribes in the land. Wm. Henry Harrison, who is erroneously reported to have died by poisoning a month after his inauguration, is alive and well and is twisting brakes on one of our railroad trains. Frank Pierce maintains some of his former dignity, inasmuch as he would accept nothing less than a conductorship. R. Hayes is the only one of the number who is still connected with the government, by being a route agent on the Wabash road. The noble example set by the above men should be emulated by all good citizens, and when your ambition seeks to raise you so that you aspire to be an editor or a postmaster, think of our former presidents and go to saving wood at 40 cents a cord or setting type at 16 cents a thousand ems if you can get a job.
The above are not the only developments made by a prayerful study of the directory. A number of curious names are presented. We find that Charles A. L. Boss who the Devil was Devised around his Jewel Case every day. It was a daily occurrence to find the key taken from the Locke, probably by some Nave. This was a base imposition and a sin as well, and it must be stopped, Orr by Christ he would take his Gun or Cannon and Cook his Grubb for him, or Herr Hoover it might be. He said no man should Crow over him; that anyone who took him for a Lamb was mistaken; they couldn't Cram such stuff down him, no sir; Nix Cumberrows. He wasn't so Green as that and didn't live on Grasse; and the person who gave him any Gass Wood make a Hasty repentance, and would be Ducky if he didn't get Dunn for and Pegg out. He had better order a Carpenter to make his Coffin at once, and get ready to go through the Golden Gates than to Buck against him. If they don't believe him let them Wade in and see how Quick he could make them Wilt. He was Rich and didn't care a Schilling how Quick they Sailed in. If they would Playfair he would give them a Tickler that would make them feel Sower in a second, so that they could just let things Rippe, but they had better have a Doctor on hand with a Ple and a Wagonner. To Hall them off, for he was a regular Wolf; a Baer, a Buck and a Tigur, when he got on a Bender, and when he'd come he'd come a Helling. His Boss told him to consider Furske, before acting Hasty and not Hazzard Mrs. Hart's Blood for some Gouty old Kabish head who wasn't worth a Cherry Stone.
A number of other queer names can also be found. There is Oelschlaeger, Poetschke, Goodenough, Dogenhoken, Frichantich, Skattulla, Zwalhen, Zivulla, Muehlenbruch, Ungemacht, Lommatsch, Streletsky, Vuillment, Pitteinger and others.
The hardest name to pronounce and spell in probably Gogedermudr (pronounced Gogdemburged 33-um). The shortest name is probably Ada Ome, and the longest Schnoosenberger. There are 131 persons who pronounce their name Meyer although spelled different ways, 123 Millers, 92 Smiths, 33 Johnsons, 39 Jones and 29 Browns. The letter S includes the largest number of names and the letter Q the smallest. X is not represented. The directory contains 10,208 names an increase of 384 names over the last edition. A number of other interesting facts can be gleaned by a study of the directory, of which the above is only a sample.

CONCERNING YOU OURSELVES AND OUR NEW Departure!

Nearly three months have elapsed since our firm, as re-organized, re-opened our mammoth store under the new department system. In the midst of so heavy a trade that our sales of last year are nearly doubled, we pause to acknowledge with warmest thanks the splendid support the citizens of Fort Wayne and vicinity have given us, in our thus far eminently successful efforts, to establish in this city, a department store not one whit behind the mammoth concerns of this kind in Paris, New York and some other large cities.
Especially would we acknowledge the surprising patronage extended to us, by all classes of our citizens in our New Furniture Department, which has been so heavy that for three months our sales of furniture have averaged about one car load per day. When we opened this department, with the finest and best made line of goods ever exhibited in this city, a high-priced, sore-headed, mushroom dealer in furniture cried out, "Beware of Swindlers." Already the question has arisen, "How many cents on the dollar will the creditors of this man get?"
THE FUTURE.
The future of our business looks bright and flattering. Notwithstanding the heavy trade, we have done in our new departments, our business in Dry Goods, Notions, and Carpets, has also shown a gratifying increase over previous years. It is our intention to carry a fuller line of goods in all our departments than ever before, and to sell them at still smaller profits.

Foster Brothers,
Leaders of the Fort Wayne trade in Dry Goods, Notions, Carpets, Furniture, and Housekeeping Hardware, Woodenware, and Tinware.

Questions and Answers.

Question—How is gold like charity?
A.—Because it "covers a multitude of sins."

Q.—Does gold render people deaf, dumb and blind, and how?
A.—Yes; it makes them deaf to the whisperings of conscience as well as to the cry of misery; dumb when they should hear true testimony; and blind to vice and crime no less than to scenes of destitution. DITTON'S DOSE.

Suicide of a Fort Wayne Boy at Wabash.

Sad End of a Dissipated Career.

A special telegram to the SENTINEL of Tuesday last, announced the suicide of Tom Ditton, at Wabash. Ditton was well known among the railroad boys in this city, having been for a long time employed as switchman in the Wabash yard, at this point. Yesterday's Wabash Courier, gives the following details of his suicide:

For two weeks prior to his sudden death he had not been drinking, but he was the victim of a loathsome disease that evidently gave him great trouble and rendered life miserable to him. On Monday evening, a few hours before he is supposed to have taken the fatal dose, he told Eugene Hazen, bartender at Mr. Ditton's saloon, that he intended to take his own life, but Eugene paid no heed to the matter, as he supposed Tom was only joking. That evening, however, he purchased eight grains of morphine from Mr. Rohbock, the druggist, claiming that he wanted it as an ingredient in a mixture he was preparing. Mr. Rohbock had often prepared this medicine for him, and supposed it was all proper, he weighed out for him eight grains of the deadly drug.

This was about 9 o'clock, and in an hour or so afterwards he was discovered by Marshal Bruner, Jim Shea and others under the stairway at the old Whitesides Block, and it was found difficult to arouse him from the stupor into which he had fallen. He was taken home by Eugene Hazen about 11 o'clock, and at 3 the next morning he breathed his last. The symptoms indicated that death resulted from an overdose of morphine. It seems that he had two bottles of the drug on his person, another besides the one he had obtained from Mr. Rohbock. The latter had scarcely been touched. The funeral took place on Wednesday afternoon and was largely attended by the many friends of the family who have the heartfelt sympathy of the community.

ODD FELLOWS.

They Had a Grand Time at Rome City Yesterday.

The Odd Fellows' picnic at Rome City yesterday was a grand success. Speeches were made by Grand Master Cox, P. Grand Kimball and Grand Chaplain Steward. From this city there were 686 passengers, and there was an accession of 25 at Kendallville. The day was passed in boating, eating, fishing, and dancing. The party left Rome City at 6 o'clock, arriving here about 8. Part of the city band and some of the excursionists stopped off at Kendallville to attend a dance. Before the train reached Hometown the conductor was notified to pass over the trestle work at that place carefully. Upon investigation the trestle work was found to be in a very unsafe condition. The train passed over it slowly, and most of the passengers walked over.

A.—Because it "covers a multitude of sins."

Married in Haste.

George Josse and Frederick Sommers were married this afternoon by Justice Pratt in the classic wilds of Bloomingdale. The ceremonies were not very elaborate, but—owing to certain circumstances—were very impressive.

Dr. Josse notified the county clerk not to issue any license for the marriage of his son Ed. Josse, and Frederick Sommers, and Clerk Spencer notified the parties that no license could be obtained.

The father of the girl, however, during the absence of Mr. Spencer, went to Mr. Willis Majer and obtained a license, he not knowing that a license had been refused by Mr. Spencer, and moreover made affidavit that the parties were of age and had the full consent of their parents. So he issued the license.

CURIOUS COGNOMENS.
Which Can be Found in the New City Directory.
A Few Interesting Items Gleaned from Its Pages.
America is thoroughly democratic in all its institutions; there are no bloated aristocrats to be found in its ranks. As an example, by referring to our new city directory, it is found that our presidents, who were once hailed as "his excellency," and were feted wherever they chanced to go, have since their retirement from public life settled down to quiet life and common labor, and no one passing them on the streets would imagine that they once reigned as chief executive officers of our mighty nation. For example: John Adams is now running a saloon and billiard hall on Calhoun street, while Andrew Jackson is the successful manipulator of the calcimine brush; Andrew Johnson, who came so near being impeached, and who has been reported dead by almost every newspaper in the land, is quietly running an engine on one of our railroads; J. Madison has learned the machinist's trade, and is running a lathe in the Pittsburgh railroad shop, while J. Monroe, the author of the famous "Monroe's doctrine" is a coal heaver or fireman on a locomotive engine. John Tyler no longer wields the imperial scepter, but devotes his time to penmanship and is now one of the finest scribe in the land. Wm. Henry Harrison, who is erroneously reported to have died by poisoning a month after his inauguration, is alive and well and is twisting brakes on one of our railroad trains. Frank Pierce maintains some of his former dignity, inasmuch as he would accept nothing less than a conductorship. R. Hayes is the only one of the number who is still connected with the government, he being a route agent on the Wabash road. The noble example set by the above men should be emulated by all good citizens and when your ambition seeks to raise you so that you aspire to be an editor or a postmaster, think of our former presidents and go to sawing wood at 40 cents a cord or setting type at 16 cents a thousand ems if you can get a job.
The above are not the only developments made by a prayerful study of the directory. A number of curious names are presented. We find that Charles Axt, his boss who the Diehl was Devlin around his Jewel Case every day. It was a Daily occurrence to find the Key taken from the Locke, probably by some Nave. This was a Base imposition and a Sinn as Well, and it must be stopped, Orr by Crist he would take his Gunn or Cannon and Cook his Grubb for him, or Herr Hoover it might be. He said no man should Crow over him; that anyone who took him for a Lamb was mistaken; they couldn't Cram such stuff down him, no sir; Jinx Cumerrows. He wasn't so Green as that and didn't live on Grasse, and the person who gave him any Gass Wood make a Hasty repentance, and would he Lucky if he didn't get Dunn for and Pegg out. He had better order a Carpenter to make his Coffin at once, and get ready to go through the Golden Gates than to Buck against him. If they don't believe him let them Wade in and see how Quick he could make them Wilt. He was Rich and didn't care a Schilling how Quick they Sailed in. If they would Playfair he would give them a Tickler that would make them feel Souer in a second, so that they could just let things Rippe, but they had better have a Doctor on hand with a Pie and a Waggoner to Hall them off, for he was a regular Wolf, a Baer, a Buck and a Tiger, when he got on a Bender, and when he'd come he'd come a Helling. His Boss told him to consider Furste before acting Hasty and not Hazzard Mrs. Hart's Blood for some Gouty old Kabisch head who wasn't worth a Cherry Stone.
A number of other queer names can also be found. There is Oelschlager, Poetschke, Goodenough, Dogenhoken, Frichtanicht, Skattulla, Zwahlen, Zivulla, Muehlenbruch, Ungemacht, Lommatsch, Strolecsky, Vuillment, Pitteinger and others.
The hardest name to pronounce and spell in probably Gogedermudr (pronounced Gogdbruvudgd 735) film. The shortest name is probably Ada Omo, and the longest Schnooesenberger. There are 131 persons who pronounce their name Meyer although spelled differently ways, 123 Millers, 92 Smiths, 33 Johnsons, 39 Jones and 29 Browns. The letter S includes the largest number of names and the letter Q the smallest. X is not represented. The directory contains 10,208 names an increase of 383 names over the last edition. A number of other interesting facts can be gleaned by a study of the directory, of which the above is only a sample.

CONCERNING YOU OURSELVES AND OUR NEW Departure!
Nearly three months have elapsed since our firm, as re-organized, reopened our mammoth store under the new department system. In the midst of so heavy a trade that our sales of last year are nearly doubled, we pause to acknowledge with warmest thanks the splendid support the citizens of Fort Wayne and vicinity have given us, in our thus far eminently successful efforts, to establish in this city, a department store not one whit behind the mammoth concerns of this kind in Paris, New York and some other large cities.
Especially would we acknowledge the surprising patronage extended to us, by all classes of our citizens in our New Furniture Department, which has been so heavy that for three months our sales of furniture have averaged about one car load per day. When we opened this department, with the finest and best made line of goods ever exhibited in this city, a high-priced, sore-headed, mushroom dealer in furniture cried out, "Beware of Swindlers." Already the question has arisen, "How many cents on the dollar will the creditors of this man get?"
THE FUTURE.
The future of our business looks bright and flattering. Notwithstanding the heavy trade we have done in our new departments, our business in Dry Goods, Notions, and Carpets, has also shown a gratifying increase over previous years. It is our intention to try a fuller line of Goods in all our departments than ever before, and to sell them at still smaller prices.
Foster Brothers,
Leaders of the Fort Wayne trade in Dry Goods, Notions, Carpets, Furniture and Housekeeping Hardware, Woodware, and Tinware.
